

11/8/2023 Meeting Notes -

CD: Vinayak Nair, D/D: Brett Davis

Takeaways

- Really enjoyed the look and feel of both the mockups A and B - If I could describe it in two words - professional and clean.
- In particular, I liked Mockup B more because it seems more readable and less intimidating than Mockup A, which looks like it was designed for an older audience - not someone with a high school education.
- Additionally, Mockup B keeps sources to the side, which I think is an apt choice - especially if viewers don't want to read the source necessarily.
- The black nav bar creates contrast with the white background - please keep it.
- Could make the text in the navigation window of the desktop become bolder when selected so people know which section they are looking at immediately
- There is a potentially a cleaner way to transition between pages in the Mockup B mobile view than by using the buttons
- The nav may be too cluttered, the software section can go
- On the mobile view, the text should be more readable and the sources page at the very end can have fewer journals.
- Create an icon for the page.
